

101 Strategies to Help All Students Succeed

Do you have students on IEPs? Do you have English language learners who need a boost? Do you have students falling through the cracks? Students with short attention spans? Low motivation?

This CAN'T-MISS EVENT will guide participants to learn specific strategies to help students get organized, be accountable for results and work independently.

This highly practical day will be filled with dozens of “take back and use” ideas to help students succeed. With a focus on involvement and engagement for every student, but especially for students who struggle, explore high impact review strategies and anchor activities to engage every student.

About Your Presenter

Linda Tilton is an international author, speaker and educational consultant with 35 years in the field of education. She has taught at all grade levels K-12 in combined general education and special education. Best known for her highly practical “take back and use” strategies designed to help every student succeed, Linda believes passionately that today’s engaged student is tomorrow’s lifelong learner.

Linda focuses on a variety of concrete topics to help students be successful learners including differentiated instruction, organizational skills, high interest review activities, behavior strategies as well as reading and math ideas.
